Consultation

Wedding Consulting normally consists of only one or two face-to-face meetings with the bride and groom. Throughout the planning process of your big day, you may find yourself stuck on one particular item/area and needing some guidance.

Such blunders can include concerns such as:

- Where do I get started?
- How can I stretch my limited budget?
- How do I address parental divorces? Second families?
- I need help developing my theme.
- I'm looking for unique invitations, where can I find them?
- I would like to use artificial flowers, where can I find good quality ones for a decent price? Can you help me find an artificial florist?
- I've been to so many weddings and have seen it all before, can you provide me with a few unique bombonniere/favour ideas?
- I want to do as much as I can myself. Can you point me in the right direction for sourcing well priced supplies? Do you have any wholesale paper vendors you could connect me with?

A brief telephone or email discussion would take place to establish your need. A one- to two-hour meeting would then be booked during which we would present my ideas and provide you with my recommendations.
